The Spiritual Discovery of America, Rev. Martin Woulfe

In recent decades, there has been a profound re-evaluation of the European “discovery” of North and South America. The “Doctrine of Discovery” gave Europeans the right to claim territory that was already inhabited and to impose their culture, values and religion upon those inhabitants. What is the current UU view of that “Doctrine?” How does our understanding inform our appreciation and contact with other cultures and religions?

“Change for Change”, Traditional Milestones, Group Photo after service. Please be here.

What’s in a Pronoun?, Rev. Martin Woulfe

Which pro-nouns have you used during your lifetime to describe yourself? Does “one size” still fit all - or, are we leaving in a new era, when our commitment to honor the inherent worth & dignity of one another, demands a change in mindset – and vocabulary? What are some other frontiers that are evolving in the present era?

Forging Forgiveness, Rev. Martin Woulfe

The ability to forgive others – and sometimes oneself – is a true test of spiritual maturity. Whereas other traditions have rituals and sacraments that provide a pathway to forgiveness, what does the liberal tradition offer? Can forgiveness exist apart from justice and reconciliation?

The Day of the Dead, Rev. Martin Woulfe

The end of October and the beginning of November herald a convergence of important holidays and holidays the world over that direct our attention towards one’s ancestors and the experience of death. There are some striking differences though between various cultures. How do such observances yield a greater appreciation for the interconnection of all existence, of which we are a part? As part of this service, members and friends will create an altar to honor our loved ones who have passed away – please bring one or more photos to share.

The Annual Children’s Costume Parade will follow the service.
